LinuxTag und earth displacements

[posted Tuesday, 11th of June, 2002]

After a four day visit in Karlsruhe to attend LinuxTag and doing sessions on PHP, it was time to go home. With the nice ICE train nach Holland... no problem. Well.... it became a problem when some hill near Koblenz started a life on it's own and decided to break the traintrack.

This situation made me miss the ICE connection in Cologne to my hometown. We could get as far as Duisburg by "normal" trains, but from there the only possibility was go by a stop train to Emmerich. Luckily the guys of the german rail corporation were so nice to figure out cabs to Arnhem; but that's still not were I needed to go to. At the moment the estimated arrival time in Emmerich is 0.25, the last train in Arnhem going to my town leaves at 0.30. But every rocket scientist can figure out that it's going to take more than 5 minutes to go from Emmerich to Arnhem by taxi.

UPDATES

And Then There Was PIE

Tuesday, March 18th 2025, 14:50 GMT
London, UK

In tandem with the PECL website, which hosts around 400 packages, PHP developers have been able to install third party extensions for several decades now with the PECL installer.
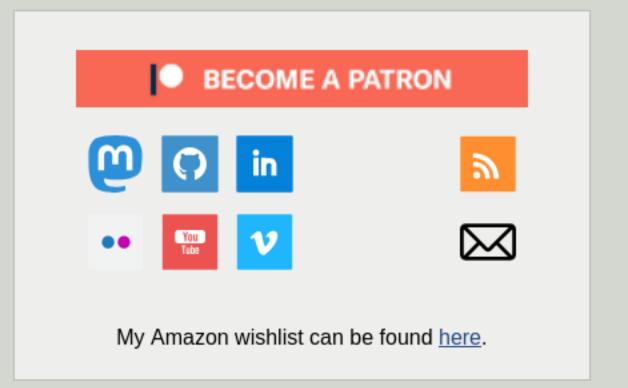

PECL, which stands for the PHP Extension Community Library was a sister project to PEAR, the PHP Extension and Application Repository. This repository has largely been replaced by Packagist, which hosts PHP user land code to be installed through Composer. Unlike PEAR, Packagist allows anybody to register a library of PHP code, which can then be composed through a file (`composer.json`) and made available to people's application code.

For extensions written in C, PECL was the only option. The PECL website has not been properly maintained for a long while now. And there are issues where the package description and release information XML files can not even contain higher-byte characters due to a very old misconfiguration of MySQL—back when it did not support Unicode and UTF-8 properly.
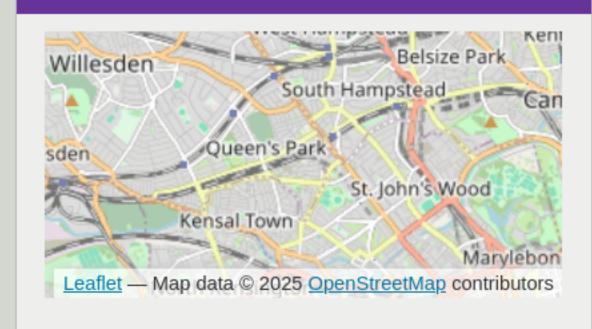

Updating the website, for example for adding new releases releases, is also not the easiest thing to do. Unlike adding a Git tag as you can do with Composer packages, it requires modifying an unwieldy XML file, and uploading the packages manually through a web form.

With this in mind, about a year and a half ago, I started drafting the requirements for "New PECL". The initial goals I came up with were:

- A new simplified installer, that does not rely on PEAR

- Ways to configure which (already installed) PHP version should get which extension version(s)

🎨 Quim Gil: LinuxTag slides with some maemo novelties

ⓘ flag   📑 bookmark   💬 search

LinuxTag has been very interesting and the GNOME Mobile corner was full of cool stuff and people (other corners too). I have met many people I wanted to chat with for so long. The presentation seemed to be well received. For some reason the video wasn't recorded but the slides contain the core stuff anyway. Slides available via web browser if you Flash or in PDF. I will expand each maemo novelty in single shots in the following days.

The Java@maemo effort has done a lot of progress in the human side, I believe. Johannes Eickhold, Sebastian Manckel, the other 2 Java hackers whose name I forgot and the JaLiMo project are already critical mass to start atracting Java energies to the maemo platform. I have reported already to the right corners of Nokia and I will provide more details now that I know them.

Sebastian made a good presentation of JaLiMo (auf Deutsch), I hope he uploads it somewhere and eventually translates it to English. As you see I have started using Slideshare, if you have a maemo related presentation please add the maemo tag.

Microsoft's ICC email block triggers Dutch concerns over dependence on U.S. tech

Microsoft's recent decision to block access to the email account of International Criminal Court (ICC) Chief Prosecutor Karim Khan is raising urgent questions in the Netherlands about the country's deep reliance on American technology companies, de Volkskrant reports. The move followed U.S. President Donald Trump's sanctions against the ICC—an escalation triggered by arrest warrants targeting, among others, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

The blocked access, enforced by Microsoft, means Khan can no longer read messages sent to his official account. The decision, directly tied to U.S. foreign policy, reportedly underscores the vulnerability of Dutch public institutions that depend on American tech infrastructure. The incident has reignited political debate about the extent to which the Netherlands can—and should—continue relying on Microsoft.

"It's absolutely on our radar," said a senior Dutch civil servant to de Volkskrant. "This issue is receiving full attention across all levels of government." Ludo Baauw, director of Dutch cloud provider Intermax Group, described the reaction to Trump's return to office as an "earthquake," in comments to de Volkskrant. According to Baauw, at least ten vital Dutch public sector organizations have contacted Intermax to explore how to reduce

Simple Mail Transfer Protocol
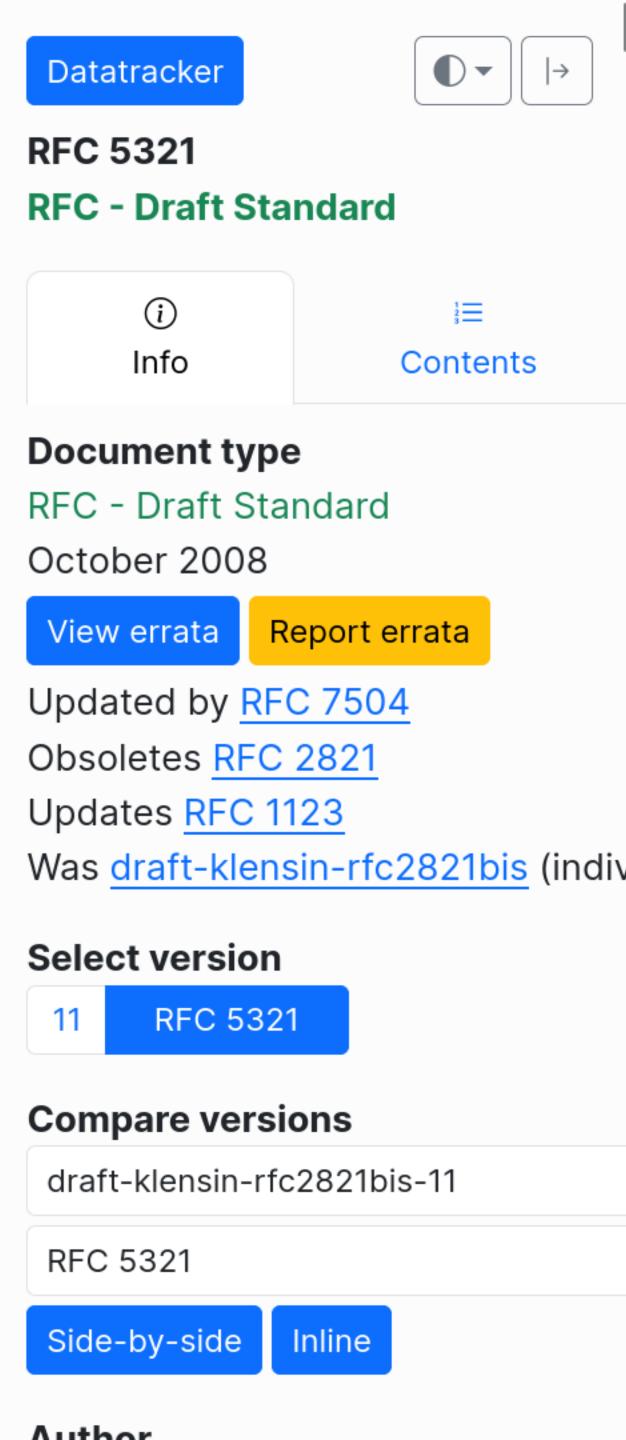

Status of This Memo

This document specifies an Internet standards track protocol for the Internet community, and requests discussion and suggestions for improvements. Please refer to the current edition of the "Internet Official Protocol Standards" (STD 1) for the standardization state and status of this protocol. Distribution of this memo is unlimited.

Abstract

This document is a specification of the basic protocol for Internet electronic mail transport. It consolidates, updates, and clarifies several previous documents, making all or parts of most of them obsolete. It covers the SMTP extension mechanisms and best practices for the contemporary Internet, but does not provide details about particular extensions. Although SMTP was designed as a mail transport and delivery protocol, this specification also contains information that is important to its use as a "mail submission" protocol for "split-UA" (User Agent) mail reading systems and mobile environments.

Internet Relay Chat Protocol

Status of This Memo

   This memo defines an Experimental Protocol for the Internet community. Discussion and suggestions for improvement are requested.
   Please refer to the current edition of the "IAB Official Protocol Standards" for the standardization state and status of this protocol.
   Distribution of this memo is unlimited.

Abstract

   The IRC protocol was developed over the last 4 years since it was first implemented as a means for users on a BBS to chat amongst themselves. Now it supports a world-wide network of servers and clients, and is stringing to cope with growth. Over the past 2 years, the average number of users connected to the main IRC network has grown by a factor of 10.

   The IRC protocol is a text-based protocol, with the simplest client being any socket program capable of connecting to the server.

Compliance status

This dashboard shows email sender requirements compliance for your domain and subdomains. Learn how to use the Compliance Status dashboard.
Last updated Wed, May 28, at 1:00 AM.

Requirement	Status
SPF and DKIM authentication	ⓘ Needs work — Set up both SPF and DKIM authentication SPF prevents spammers from sending unauthorized messages that appear to be from your domain. Receiving servers use DKIM to verify that the domain owner actually sent the message.
From: header alignment	ⓘ Needs work — Ensure the From: header aligns with either SPF or DKIM For direct mail, the domain in the sender's From: header must be aligned with either the SPF domain or the DKIM domain. This is required to pass DMARC alignment.
DMARC authentication	✓ Compliant
Encryption	✓ Compliant
User-reported spam rate	✓ Compliant
DNS records	✓ Compliant
One-click unsubscribe	ⓘ Needs work — Ensure one-click unsubscribe is correctly implemented for your subscription messages One-click unsubscribe allows recipients to easily unsubscribe instead of marking your messages as spam

[RESOLVED]Google disabled my business gmail account!!!

Has this ever happened to anyone, and how did you get it back?

What is their problem? I use the account daily, or at least used to, but they just up and decided to take hold of it. Now, I can't access my business' Twitter or Facebook account, and a whole slew of other important accounts.

I know never to trust Google with anything important again!

1. Create sha256 digest of the text representing the JSON payload

2. Format signing key:
```
(request-target): post /user/@blog
host: social.derickrethans.nl
date: Fri, 30 May 2025 14:54:19 GMT
digest: SHA-256={$digest}

3. Retrieve private key from the Actor.

4. Use this private key to sign the signature.

5. Encode signature in Base 64 and formats it again:
keyId="https://social.derickrethans.nl/@fridaynightdinners#main-key",

Albert's Schloss

Friday May 2nd, 2025
Rating: 4

by Derick Rethans

If you are in search of a bierkeller (German for beer cellar), with a band, and where you can dance on the tables (but not the benches), then Albert's Schloss is the place to be.

Luckily for us, there is also upstairs Schenke (think: German bakery café), and in the cellar there are many tables for less entertaining dining far away from the band. Here it is quiet enough to have a conversation over burgers, bratwursts, schnitzels, and other alpine fare. And the accompanying beer.

And this is where we found ourselves on this Friday evening.

Hiding away in the back, next to a ski gondola converted into a dining place, we started with a half pint of a traditional German beer. My wife chose the Currywurst as her main, two thick sausages with a spicy sauce and fries. I selected the Cordon Bleu schnitzel, a flattened chicken breast stuffed with Gruyère and ham, served with a mushroom sauce and served with Parmesan fries. The schnitzel wasn't of Austrian proportions — it did actually fit on the plate — but was well cooked, and certainly enough.

We washed our mains down with another half pint, and as we were quite full, we decided to have a digestive. You can get schnapps by the dozen, in all kinds of fruity flavours, but we went for something @blog Thanks a lot!

Are there any plans to skip gcc and make, e.g. directly bundle tinycc? (https://bun.sh/blog/compile-and-run-c-in-js)

" RSS never tracked you.
Email never throttled you.
Blogs never begged for dopamine.
The old web wasn't perfect.
But it was yours.
